Becoming

PATHFINDER VILLAGE

2020 Community Calendar
Susan Decker presents CEO Paul Landers with the original Otsego School plaque in 2010. Inset: Miss Chesebrough in 1968 and an early ad for Pathfinder’s founding school.
'Becoming' is unique to every person, family, and group. As we engage with and react to the world around us, who we become is shaped by how we listen, what we learn, how we act and examples set by others.

Becoming isn't about arriving somewhere or achieving a certain aim. It's a forward motion, a process centered in the meaning and values we gain from experiences. Those values then guide us on the new paths we choose.

Pathfinder Village's path started in 1922 when Nurse Florence Chesebrough opened The Otsego School. That faith-inspired, family-run school for children with disabilities offered a safe haven for families and set the stage for what was to follow—the creation of a welcoming, dynamic, innovative and inclusive community that opened with seven homes and a school in July 1980.
Anja Eriksen has found fulfillment through her friendships, meaningful jobs, and hobbies.
The becoming stories of people with Down syndrome and other disabilities are diverse. Over the past four decades, their prospects for fulfillment have grown as our eyes have been opened to their potential and more opportunities have come to the fore.

Anja Eriksen’s becoming story speaks to personal fulfillment. Her education began at The Otsego School and she grew in independence at Pathfinder. Like many teens, she loved sports, dances, and socializing with friends. Her talents and drive allowed her to succeed at work through the years, helped her achieve Employee of the Month honors several times, and led to her being named as the 2007 Arc Otsego Worker of the Year.

After being honored for over a decade’s service at Bassett Healthcare, Anja has recently retired and now follows her passions and focuses on her friends and family.

I’ve done a lot in my life, and I like to stay busy. I paint, walk, crochet. I go to day program. I like to help staff.

Down’s Syndrome children have their first home

By Anna Elwyn

FREMONT — Saturday was the proudest day of her life for Denise How. She had been chosen to cut the ribbon for the formal opening of Pathfinder Village.

Robin did her job well. She is one of the 65 residents who moved into the new facility of the Otsego School, Inc., the only residential home for Down’s Syndrome children in the United States.

The opening ceremonies were the completion of Phase One of Pathfinder Village. Three years of planning, fund raising and governmental approval has resulted in ten new New England village type residences and a brick facade schoolhouse at the end of the village mall.

The Otsego School Inc. was founded in 1971, nearly 60 years ago, by Miss Florence Causse through of Fremont. Several years ago the school was in danger of being closed because the buildings could no longer meet government requirements.

Mr. Martin Mulca, former school nurse for the facility, became the director and began planning the new complex which would continue the school.

Physical education teacher Donna Higie plays ball with Marcel. The activity is an important lesson and not just a Pathfinder’s process of becoming coincided with the civil rights and women’s movements; the era was also marked by enhanced oversight for the care and education of people with intellectual disabilities.

In 1975, New York officials determined that the retrofitted old farmhouses of The Otsego School would not meet new life safety codes, and withdrew its operating license. To save their beloved school, families, community members and staff dreamed and planned, lobbied and raised funds, and turned a 23-acre cornfield into a nascent planned community.

It was crazy to dream this impossible dream. With no funds, no equity—we didn’t even own the beds the residents slept in—no license to operate, no fund-raising base, no land—all we had were our hearts and the determination to make this happen!

Andy Kennedy lives in the moment, whether he’s relaxing with friends or having fun on St. Patrick’s Day. He helped ring in some of Pathfinder’s most joyful moments, like the Chapel ground breaking and the opening of the Kennedy Willis Center.
The old saying, 'Take time to smell the roses' speaks to appreciating one's life as it unwinds while parking the hectic pace and distractions of daily life to the side. By focusing on the meaningful events and people in our lives, we become happier and are more satisfied overall.

Andy Kennedy, who thrives as an outgoing member of the Pathfinder community, has tapped into mindfulness and is fully focused on his friends and their shared experiences as they happen.

In the moment ... that's Andy. Whatever his setting is, that's how he responds. He loves being with his friends, he loves to dance. He really loves music.

Andy has grown at Pathfinder because he is so social. He likes to go to events, he feels free to visit other houses where he can socialize.

He's an optimistic person and is comfortable with others. He expresses how he feels. When he smiles, it just brightens your day.

Pathfinder School student Joe Duffy practices using his voice with Speech Language Pathologist Corisa Haller.

The school places a special emphasis on speech, every effort being made to give each child as large a vocabulary as possible, for without speech a child’s mind cannot properly expand, nor his mental horizon be broadened. It is his means of communication with his fellow beings and of acquiring and exchanging new ideas and thoughts.

The Otsego School brochure, 1950s
Communication is vital for making our needs known. It also brings us and others joy.

Pathfinder Village is a unique place that helps each person become the best version of themselves. Encouraging each person to become an effective communicator is just one of our goals. We are a true community with communication among neighbors, friends, residents, and others. Our staff work to ensure that individuals always have the opportunity to communicate, be that in placing orders at the bakery, speaking on the phone, or making choices throughout the day and in the community.

We accept a person’s methods of communication while making efforts to improve those skills. From learning a person's gestures, sign language, or use of a communication device, we recognize we have equally as much to learn from our students, campers, and residents.

Celebrate small victories

Splash Path

5K and fun walk
Accentuate the positive has guided Pathfinder in helping people become active, engaged members of our community. By celebrating small victories we learn to embrace positive habits. Recognizing small wins helps too when success seems just out of reach.

Working towards goals isn’t always easy. At Pathfinder, our staff draws on years of ‘what works’ to initiate learning and motivate individuals in all situations. Earnestly saying "Good job!” can help instill a sense of accomplishment for someone having difficulties.

A Village victory worth celebrating is our annual Splash Path, an inclusive 5k event that highlights our campus and community health initiatives with new friends. Another win is our regular Mileage Club program, started by our Nursing Department in 2019, which measures success with toe tokens and offers fitness walking as a social activity for all. In the first seven months of the club, the Village logged 3,326 miles.
Classroom Aide Patty Slosek has brought out the best in students during her 39 years at Pathfinder School.
Patty Slosek has unlocked students’ potential since Pathfinder opened. She’s been a mentor and role model to coworkers too, as they have grown as teachers and leaders.

I was an intern for Teacher Rose Finnerty in 1980 and was hired in 1981. It makes me feel good that I’ve helped students make progress and motivated them.

In Sister Rose’s class, we taught daily living skills to very young children. We’d work each day on basic tasks and eventually they would succeed. The small victories were meaningful.

I enjoyed working with the little kids very much, and now I work with older students. I see a difference in their abilities; I like that I see growth from class to class.

When I’m working with a child they know I have expectations for them. They respond well; they know they can come to me at any time for help. When they finish a task, they’re happy because they feel accomplished.

You always have to be positive. I want to see our students grow and keep moving forward.
Growth

Learning through Otsego Academy

Aging among friends

Serving neighbors through the Mobile Market
A group of families and a wise nurse did the unimaginable! They built a community that began with a revolutionary mandate, "...that each life may find meaning."

In 1980, we were a school and seven homes. Today we have a 300-acre campus with 14 residences, a bakery, a modern health center, soccer fields, an education and research center, adult day services and more.

This place, the people, the purpose: We are now Camp Pathfinder, which brings young adults here to make new friends each summer. We are Pathfinder Produce, which trains workers and helps neighbors access fresh foods. We are Otsego Academy, our post-secondary program that helps students gain independence. And we are our Aging Program, to care for our loved ones with compassion as they grow older.

Pathfinder has grown so that we may fully support people at each stage of life.

Pathfinder Village
Cheryl Winton and Eric Mackiewicz of Pathfinder Village’s Day Services make weekly ‘Feel Good Box’ deliveries of fresh produce, handmade art items and encouraging notes, a service that lifts up Otsego County neighbors with medical conditions who have difficulties accessing fresh foods.
Literature for The Otsego School spoke of teaching each person "to be self-reliant and to be of service to others." Today, more than ever, Pathfinder Village promotes this value by presenting opportunities at each stage of life that guide people to their best selves.

Growth involves risk: To improve a person needs to stretch, be flexible, and try new challenges. Pathfinder’s programs are based on thorough planning that facilitates meaningful activities. Each step in the process supports a winning attitude of 'Let's go for it!'

Individuals draw on this positive energy, and with practice and praise, they embrace their successes. In many cases, this leads to new roles at work, at volunteer sites, in sports, or as community leaders.

Through wellsprings of caring, the capacity to work hard, and their considerable abilities, people with disabilities can be empowered and can become the best version of themselves.

Kelly Meyers
Chief Program Officer
Investment

Like many Pathfinder families, the McCords find value in their shared Pathfinder experiences and Linda’s personal growth and fulfillment.
Over the years that Linda has lived at Pathfinder, we have appreciated more and more what a unique setting it is. It’s the perfect spot for her and has helped her gain independence, make friends, and find and expand her interests and skills. As we’ve worked with the residents, staff and boards, Pathfinder has become an extended family to us. We’re grateful to those who preceded us and want to do all we can so the Village can provide excellent care and opportunities for many more years.

Today's Pathfinder offers more services than ever before. Camp Pathfinder and Otsego Academy serve a wider variety of individuals from throughout the country. The relationship between Pathfinder and area communities has grown as concerts, festivities, sports and health facilities, the café and produce market attract participation.

To foster growth, we must answer the call for philanthropy so that the Village can adapt to the changing needs of people with disabilities. We must ensure that Pathfinder, through expert staffing and management, can continue as a model community. We are celebrating our 40th year, but we need to ensure there are 60th, 80th and 100th anniversaries down the road!

Bill McCord, parent, donor and board member
We are Family
When families consider Pathfinder Village as an option for their loved ones, it signifies a new stage of advocacy and becoming. Families recognize their needs for other options or services, and after extensive research, find their way to Pathfinder Village.

Families find more than a place for their loved one, they find a community with purpose. An important part of that purpose is the Kennedy Willis Center, our outreach and education arm. The Center opened in October 1996 and has partnered with families and other advocates, sharing Pathfinder’s expertise in best practices and our ongoing ties with respected researchers and national organizations.

Advocacy is working with people with disabilities, planning, and adjusting as needs arise or goals are set. The Kennedy Willis Center has helped families adapt and achieve goals for over 20 years.

At Pathfinder, “We are family” has a deeper meaning than the bonds of kinship in terms of supporting and caring for each other. It emphasizes appreciation and unity, and celebrates our common humanity and pathways for growth.

Pathfinder Village 40th Anniversary Celebration Call ext. 101 for details!
The privilege of a lifetime is to become who you truly are.

Carl Jung, psychiatrist
Owning one's story is about living authentically, exploring new paths, and embracing interests that resonate.

Bryan Penzer’s early story was shared in our 1986 annual report; it told of his awakening upon joining the Pathfinder community. As a teen, Bryan enhanced his speech by learning sign language, developed lifelong interests in fitness and Special Olympics, made friends, and became a contributing member of his community.

Since those days, Bryan has used his art to convey what is important to him—trips to the county fair, rustic barns, and winter landscapes. He loves to go to dances with his girlfriend Sandy and is ever-present in Pathfinder’s social scene. Recently, he has enjoyed using computers and the internet.

Whatever Bryan tackles, he makes the best of it and does it to the best of his ability. Pathfinder provides him with opportunities, and he takes it to another level. He is independent and runs with those things that interest him.

Charleen Orendorff
Assistant Enrichment Director
and Special Olympics Coach
Pathfinder School's Amanda Powell and Natalie Davis from the Cherry Valley-Springfield Central School Senior Choir have become friends through holiday caroling together each December.

Find your community
We are all social beings, and research has shown that finding community can help people become happier, healthier and more fulfilled. We have seen this first-hand at Pathfinder Village over 40 years, as people with disabilities, their friends, families, donors and others have come together and have 'become more' in our supportive environment.

At Pathfinder, there’s a sense of belonging, a spirit of togetherness inspired by the beauty of this place. But it runs deeper—it’s the universal acceptance of different and changing abilities and gifts. It’s equality and valuing each person’s contributions to continuous growth and creating meaning for all. It’s the knowing smile, the listening ear, and the hand of friendship that reveals the soul of this community.

Best wishes to you for the New Year!

As you become your best self in 2021, we invite you to find your community with us!
Seasons Greetings

Dear Families & Friends,

'Becoming'... our 2020 calendar theme celebrates Pathfinder Village’s 40th anniversary and honors the 2018 memoir of former First Lady Michelle Obama. This story is truly one of 'Becoming,' a forward-motion, always evolving and reaching consciousness towards a better self. Pathfinder may look differently than it did 40 years ago when we were seven homes and a schoolhouse, but our vision and mission remain ever so strong as we celebrate 40 years of 'Becoming.'

Joey! Holiday wishes to you and yours!

Thank you for being part of the Pathfinder journey, and we send season's greetings to you and yours!
